PORT WASHINGTON, L. I., Sept. 5.—Little Dipper, owned and sailed by George W. Corry, a veteran skipper to the Manhasset Bay Club, proved to be the best of the contestants in an interclub race for boats of the star class on Manhasset Bay this afternoon. The surface of the bay had scarcely a ripple and the going over the six mile course was unusually light. Corry, however, handled his craft so well that she got the most out of what little breeze there was.

The Little Dipper made the six miles in 1 hour 37 minutes 8 seconds, allowing a margin of 2 minutes 47 seconds over Veta, owned by George W. Elder, Jr. The Adams, owned by Edward Williams and Edison Stannard, was being carried off the honors in races of this kind with monotonous regularity. Finished third, Corry's good third mate, the He, elapsed time 1 hour 44 minutes 4 seconds slower than that of the Little Dipper and only twenty seconds better than the Veta. The Adams, owned by W. Trench, and Hydra, owned by Charles E. Hyde, which started and

Griffiths and Dundee Differ Over

That old argument over a pound of fighting flesh has sent the Dundee-Griffiths match into the discard. It was billed for the garden on September 16, but the Dundee side, which weighs in, has left Manager Welman high and dry on the rocks without a card.

It seems that Scotty Montieith arranged matters with Welman that the Dundee side would weigh 133 at the very edge of the ring. Bill felt that bit of a managerial command go in one ear and out the other. He wired Griffiths to his home in Chicago and told him to meet Dundee. Griffiths wired back that he was pleased with the terms and would accept. As weight was not mentioned, Griffiths suggested 135.

Welman tried to coax Montieith to accept this. Scotty did a Highland fling and vowed it would never, never do. Then a wire was sent to Griffiths. He held out for the 135 at six bells. Not at all pleasing to Scotty, who was packing up to commence a barnstorming trip with Dundee that is to last until Thanksgiving Day.

After Scotty had departed Griffiths arrived with McFarland. He still had his own idea of the weight he should make. Scotty was picked up by wire and told the manager was with him. The man spent $19 on telegraphic transfer before Scotty came back with "The best

I can't see where $22.50 is too much to give those boys.

"But that fellow Marshall doesn't believe that. He'll ask, then put it down as having lost a few bells."

"I hear that Mike Gibbons says that he went into the ring with a loose ear and that, besides the fact that I was too rough for him, caused his defeat."

"That's all right. Elmer had a good old Sojer Bartfield speaking."

"Now wouldn't I be a nice bright boy if I went into the ring to be polite to Mike Gibbons?" I heard a story once about a fellow who had a good memory. He forgot it. Young Mitchell was fighting Paddy Gorman in San Francisco. Paddy was a rough bird and dangerous to the middle of the crowd. Your old pal in the middle of next week will be the best. Mitchell knew this. Round after round Mitchell held Paddy firmly as if he were ordered to break and said "Drop him, drop him, drop him. Paddy, and step back a gentleman."

"Paddy paid no attention to Mitchell. He held his guard high and was ready to sock a sucker, a gasser or a sucker waiting for the chance for his eye. When entering his guard a little more at the break, Mitchell never failed to say, 'Now drop 'em, Paddy, and step back a gentleman.'"

"Finally, in the sixteenth round,

Griffiths was rounded up again. Wouldn't listen to it, but would compromise $150 at the end of the night after Scotty. From a tank town came his reply: "This is final. Griffiths must make 125 at 3 or no fight." The second night, said Wellman and Griffiths in a town. Wellman sought out Charley White of Chicago, who is in town. Charley would like to accommodate but he couldn't get in proper shape by the 15th, so Wellman got out his files and hiked off to whip the trout streams with all the fury of a mad matchmaker.

Tex Rickard, the man who bid $101,000 for the Jeffries-Johnson fight, is in town.

"I've heard some of them say that they've bid themselves overboard in the McFarland and Gibbons affair," said Tex. "That's just what they said about me when I acquired them all that day in Holoken with my bid. They didn't think it possible to go that high. We did, though, and we made a fortune. Of course, McFarland and Gibbons are not Jeffries and Johnson. There is much intense interest, no championship, not theman and when he came to Mitchell was out of the ring and counting the winner's end. He was sure that he would play the gentleman, if only for a second, some time during the fight, when he did Mitchell shoot him in the across and the Australian was in. There are no ethics in this game, a man a polite fighter and I'll show you a running."
